

New LUCI Publication: Light & Art in Public Spaces

Dear LUCI members,

We are pleased to announce the new LUCI publication Light & Art in Public Spaces.

Light and art projects – from creating a piece of public art with light, to lighting an existing work of art, to illuminating urban underpasses, or transforming buildings into landmarks with light – offer multiple opportunities to municipalities.

This publication demonstrates how you, as municipalities, can use light and art as a tool to engage citizens and improve quality of life in the city.

It features:

- over 15 case studies from Amsterdam, Gothenburg, Helsinki, Lyon, Rotterdam and Turin
- a look at the different stakeholders and processes involved in light and art projects as well as the main challenges faced
- a compilation of key factors for success

Each LUCI member city will be receiving copies of Light & Art in Public Spaces by post this month.

Please contact luci@luciassociation.org if you would like additional copies.

Created in 2002 at the initiative of the City of Lyon, LUCI (Lighting Urban Community International) is an international network of cities on urban lighting. The network brings together 70 municipalities on 6 continents engaged in using light as a tool for sustainable urban development. It also includes over 50 lighting professionals and companies as associated members.
